HISTORY

• The Global Forum on Law, Justice and Development (GFLJD) was initiated by the World Bank and a few development partners, and stemmed from feedback received during the World Bank Law, Justice and Development Week of 2010 about the need for development experts, legal practitioners, policy makers, and academics to stay connected to discuss issues on a more permanent basis and to have opportunities to co-generate innovative solutions to development challenges.

• The Global Forum was officially launched during the Law, Justice and Development Week in 2011, where a first group of founding Partners attended the signing ceremony of the letters of endorsement.
RATIONALE

• Strong legal and judicial institutions are key to achieving Sustainable Development Goals

• The Global Forum on Law, Justice and Development is a permanent forum on law, justice and development to allow practitioners to freely access, co-generate and share quality international innovative legal solutions to development challenges
GOALS

• Before the establishment of Global Forum, there were no global initiatives to convene and coordinate international communities of legal practitioners on Law, Justice and Development.
• The Global Forum aims at facilitating the identification, discussion, production and/or sharing of innovative and customized legal and institutional tools to address global, regional or national development challenges.
OBJECTIVES

• To better integrate legal and judicial institutions in the development process to increase development effectiveness by carrying out relevant capacity building initiatives;

• To encourage the co-generation of innovative legal solutions to development issues and provide actionable knowledge;

• To support knowledge dissemination by a free access, use and sharing of legal solutions to development challenges by providing access to an open repository of knowledge;

• To create an Open Access Publishing to ensure that original intellectual knowledge is freely accessible, making it affordable for practitioners in resource limited environments;

• To allow for demand driven and participatory knowledge creation and application of solutions, breaking down traditional barriers to knowledge sharing across regions, resource disparities, and areas of expertise.
STRATEGIC STATEMENT

The Global Forum is a network of organizations dedicated to creating legal knowledge that promotes achievement of post-2015 sustainable development goals. Its activities bring together experts, scholars and practitioners to address the most pressing legal issues in development. Projects supported by the Global Forum focus on:

• Legal research and study, production of papers, guidance for the development community, and co-generation of knowledge products;
• Production of evidence-based approaches to solve legal challenges;
• Pilot activities to identify and apply lessons learned; and
• New methods to strengthen capacity of local leadership to build effective and efficient legal and judicial systems.
STRUCTURE AND FOCUS

The Global Forum consists of two mutually-complementary pillars:

• A permanent forum of intellectual partners, clustered by topics;
• An ICT web-based platform, C4D.

It builds on existing informal networks and partnerships in specific thematic areas, strengthened and formalized through partners’ commitment to the Global Forum Charter and Complementary documents.
CONTRIBUTIONS

The sustainability of the initiative is based on:

• In-kind contributions from intellectual partners (e.g. mobilizing own staff for the pursuit of the objectives of this memorandum; sharing knowledge by contributing to the information communication technology platform with studies, databases, training material, etc.)

• Financial partners, sponsors, and supporters contribute to the Global Forum activities with a minimum amount of $250,000 USD.

• Combination of in-kind and financial support
