Outputs for 2015

Events of the TWG

- The GFLJD organized the second roundtable on drivers of corruption during the OECD Integrity Week on the 25-26 March 2015. During this session, the participants exchanged on recent developments in legal and policy framework for anti-corruption. There was also a comparative discussion on “demand-side corruption” (i.e. stemming from government officials) and a discussion on the role of integrity due diligence in bank lending operations.

- The OECD will participate in the Law, Justice and Development Week in Washington in November 2015. Nicola Bonucci will attend the roundtable on drivers of corruption and will co-chair the TWG on anti-corruption and governance.

OECD news related to the TWG

- Helge Shroeder who attended the LJD week in October 2014, and co-organised the roundtable on drivers of corruption in March 2015, left the OECD in September 2015. He is now working as policy officer for the European Commission. The OECD is currently in the process of identifying someone internally to take over Helge’s substantial contribution to the work of the TWG.

- In 2016, the OECD will celebrate the 40 years’ anniversary of the OECD Guidelines for Multinational Enterprises. The OECD is considering a way to reflect on the MNE guidelines in the work of this TWG.

- Internally, several discussions took place to involve colleagues from the OECD in the TWG. Discussions notably took place with colleagues from the Directorate for Financial and Enterprise Affairs (DAF) working on the OECD/AFDB Initiative to support business integrity and anti-bribery efforts in Africa. In any case, we will try to mobilize DAF and other relevant directorates/divisions to be involved/hand in projects in 2016.
